According to Kirkham L. Lee of Cardston, a province wide cooperative is to be set up during the coming summer. Mr. Lee states that the consumer will buy directly from the manufacturer or producer to consumer, thereby decreasing the cost considerably without diminishing legitimate profits.

Under news oddities the Lethbridge chronicled these items Monday: 'Robbers tore the combination from a steel safe in Knox United Church, Calgary. Sunday morning, and escaped with $375.00. The theft was discovered Monday.' 'For selling milk below the minimum price, the Model Dairies Ltd., Calgary were fined the sum of $1,500.00.'

Pioneer and Builder of West Passes

Death came to Senator Burns, at his Calgary home, Wednesday at the ripe age of 81 years. He had been ill for the past two years.

Deceased came to Western Canada a penniless youth, and from ranching, at which business he started, into the packing business where he was very successful, he made his mark in the world, was a great benefactor to the cattle industry in the west, and made millions out of his many and varied investments.

His wife predeceased him several years ago, and his only son Michael, died a few months ago.

Funeral services will be held in Calgary on Saturday.

Senator Burns was appointed to the Senate of Canada in 1931 and his death makes the third vacancy in Canada's Red Chamber. For a number of years his nephew, John Burns has been managing the packing interests of the Company.

News Notes

Paul Dahl was confined to his home over the week-end with a case of the flu.

George Brawerton returned home Wednesday from a trip to Spokane. He reports a great deal of snow in the mountains.

Beet Grower's Hold Annual Meeting

"THE WORLD OF WHEAT"

By H. G. L. STRANGE
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Co., Ltd.

An international economic battle for wheat markets will come day — perhaps soon — take place.

The contestants will undoubtedly be Canada, the Argentine, Russia, the Danubian countries and Australia. Which exporting country will be able to increase its wheat acreage? Which will be forced to decrease acreage? And which will be able to hold its acreage they now have?

The country that can produce the highest quality at the lowest cost will win; others will lose.

The harsh truth is that it is much more necessary for Canada to keep her present acreage in wheat than it is for any of the other countries. The Argentine has corn, flaxseed and cattle as substitutes. Australia has cotton and wool. The Danubian countries have corn, pork and tobacco. Russia has a large population needing more foodstuffs. Canada alone has no substitutable product for export which she can grow on any substantial area of her twenty-four million acres now in wheat.

Western Canada, therefore, must improve the quality of her wheat, and bring down the cost of production. Can she do this? Yes! I for one believe she can provided the Dominion Government will assist the West, even more than it is now doing, along sound, constructive lines.

Following factors have tended to raise prices:—German food scarcity becomes more evident as purchases of Czechoslovakian, Indian and Australian wheat, also Argentine wheat and corn — Further large quantities of wheat probably needed — Further dust storms with little precipitation in U.S. south east — West coast Mexican vegetables damaged by frost.

Following factors have tended to lower price:—Further heavy general rains benefit Indian wheat and linseed — On passage wheat stocks increase. — Officially decided not to raise guaranteed price of wheat in France — Pear and apple production in Argentina increasing — Irish Free State increases home-grown wheat required in milling.

NEWS NOTES

C. W. Selman went to Lethbridge Tuesday for medical attention which he has been preparing for some time.

H. McKean and H. F. Allen, with H. Kent and R. Greenway of Lethbridge, formed a curling rink for the Taber Conspiel held last week, and brought the silverware home with them. The rink is on display in the window of the Mercantile Store.

The high wind last week was responsible for considerable damage throughout the country. The chimney on the garage of Porter's, and Larson's Billiard Hall were both blown off. In Cardston a complete chimney was blown off and the family had to go to their daughter's home. In Woolford the complete roof was taken off the home of J. E. Steed, and he and his family were forced to go to Cardston and stay with relatives for a few days.

The Annual meeting of the Raymond Beet Growers was held in the Second Ward Hall Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance of growers present. The main discussion of the afternoon centered around siloing beets for which growers decided to ask 75c. per ton, and they also voted to ask the officials for better storage facilities in the sheds to reduce the danger of frost damage and care for the beets in delivery a little faster.

The following resolution was passed with respect to the excise tax on Sugar "Whereas in other Sugar Beet Producing countries a subsidy is paid growers to encourage the production of beet sugar, and

Whereas in Canada, the Government has not given much encouragement but have used the Beet Sugar produced to collect a revenue from the consumers equal to over 50 per cent. of the amount growers receive for their beets,

Therefore, we the undersigned organizations endorse the efforts of the Beet Growers of Canada to secure from the Government a bonus of at least a large part of this tax, in order to stabilize this industry."

This resolution is signed by the following:

Raymond Beet Growers, per Wm. A. Anderson, Sec. Raymond Board of Trade, per Lee Brewerton, Pres. The Town of Raymond, per S. I. May, Mayor.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—C. D. Peterson. Vice-Pres.—I. Bliss Roberts. Sec.-Treas.—Wm. A. Anderson. A new Board of Directors was also elected at the meeting.

A farewell social was held in Stirling Saturday night in honor of Hon. and Mrs. Solon E. Low and family last Saturday night. Through some misunderstanding the invitation was not made as inclusive as was expected, and the southern part of the province was conspicuous by its absence. Stirling people were there in goodly numbers and enjoyed the evening. Mr. Low was presented with a handsomely engraved watch as a token of appreciation from his acquaintances.

W. I. MEETING

HOW MUCH FOR RELIEF NEXT WINTER

Now is a good time to consider what Raymond's relief bill will be next winter. Nearly every relief order calls for vegetables of some kind or other. There is hardly a day that from one to ten tons of coal are not ordered for relief, costing from $3.50 to $5.75 per ton delivered. These items in addition to other eatables greet the eyes of Town officials with every order. What can we do about it?

There are a lot of good advisors, and their suggestions are appreciated. One thing however they are unable to tell Town officials is how to get some of these people to WORK. Last year several garden spots were prepared for planting, the seed supplied, and in some cases even planted, and the garden started and then, wonder of wonders, weeds appeared, and the gardeners became disheartened and quit because the weeds grew. We have done a lot of gardening, and we have never yet had a garden without plenty of weeds, and hoeing, not once, but many times during the summer. It seems too bad, when people get so indolent that they would rather ask repeatedly for potatoes, carrots, corn, beets, peas and such vegetables as can be so easily grown, rather than to bend over a hoe handle and get these things for themselves. We have numerous families in our town who for years have never purchased a can of vegetables nor a potato in the store, and yet, if these people had quit because a few weeds appeared, likely they would have been on relief too.

It is really regrettable that people will fritter away their earnings in summer and fall months, and then come to the town in the winter, and ask that their neighbors feed them and provide fuel and clothing. All people are not blessed with the same degree of good management. Many people only half do things. We see families with cows to milk who milk whenever they feel like it, if they do feel like it, feed anything they may happen to get, and then when bossy goes down in her milk, simply because she hasn't been cared for, they say it doesn't pay to keep a cow. These people don't keep cows, they merely have them around. The same may be said of nearly every endeavor such people make.

It is our candid opinion that garden spots should be offered every relief recipient for the coming summer, and any who fail to tend their garden and make it produce 100 per cent., should be absolutely refused any vegetables of any kind during the coming winter.

Hard boiled, yes. But how many years do you want to feed your shiftless neighbor from the fruits of your prolonged and honest toil. Not only the ones receiving relief but all taxpayers should consider this matter.

A PEOPLE'S POET

"Each morning sees some task begun
Each evening sees it close
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose."

These lines of Longfellow's remind us that he wrote "The Village Blacksmith," "The Children's Hour," "The Psalm of Life," "The Building of the Ship," "The Courtship of Miles Standish," "Paul Revere's Ride," "Hiawatha" and "Evangeline" — well earned his title as our most popular poet of the people.

He was not only interested in every day happenings and common things, but he was by nature kindly, morally sensitive and had a real appreciation of the artistic. While others of his day may have excelled him in some respects, he excelled them in these virtues. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was born in a decade that produced some keen competition for greatness.

This descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullens was born February 27, 1807. Emerson had a four year start. Hawthorne was three years older and Poe started kicking the slats of his crib in 1809.

Longfellow, however, had a good send-off in parentage. His father was one of Portland, Maine's most prominent lawyers and he himself was studious at an early age. He produced passable poetry, at 13.

He was smart enough to enter Bowdoin College as a sophomore at 15 where he became a close friend of Hawthorne.

From 1826 to 1829 he studied in France, Spain, and Italy, preparatory to taking a professorship at Bowdoin, which position he held until 1835.

He then spent another year studying abroad and returned in 1836, one hundred and one years ago, to fill the Smith chair of modern languages at Harvard.

He lost two wives, one tragically burned to death. Longfellow however, lived outside of those experiences a happy and serene life, blessing mankind as he wrote inspiringly concerning every day things, happenings and sentiments.

While all of his work is not above literary criticism, a fine representative group of his poems could be selected which it would be hard to excel.

He has been called the children's poet because of his interest in them and the fact that near the end of his 75 happy years, a group of children gave him a chair made of chestnut wood from the tree that had sheltered the "village smithy."

Royden W. Low of Magrath was a Raymond visitor last Monday.

A large bunch of men have been working a great part of the week at different points between Lethbridge and Coutts to open up the Sunshine Trail.

The weather surely was acting like early spring the first of the week. Flurries of snow, a bit of frost at night, but generally quiet and very pleasant.

SENTENCE STIMULANTS

The Mayor of New York recently said, "Women are less selfish, less ambitious and always, — always, mind you — do they respect a confidence." That last sounds as though the Mayor's mind went a little off-guard!

While it is true that nearly all the old vices are still with us, it is not necessary for anyone person to practice all of them to hold down the too-optimistic.

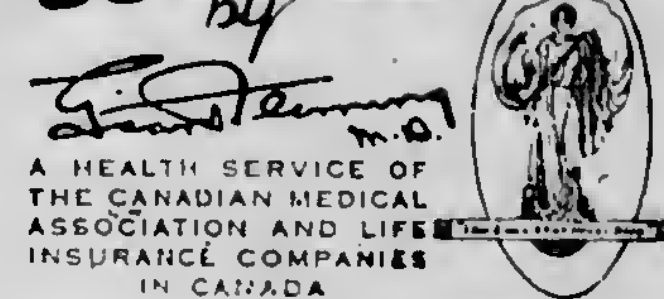

"It was not until the 15th century of our Christian era that the human brain became clever enough to invent a fork."

We look back at the fiendish cruelty of the "dark ages" and wonder why. So may those who look back on us a thousand years hence. But still, we have some good points.

"It has recently been discovered that the ant, too, like his gigantic human cousin, has acquired the art of domesticating the lower animals. He, too herds his cows — that is, the insects called aphids which excrete a milk-like fluid; he milks them by stroking their backs; and he drives them for shelter into stables which he has built for them out of blades of grass and tiny threads of silk, just as the herdsman of the new stone age, about twelve thousand years ago, drove his cattle into the primitive stables which his crude hands had built for them."

—Henry Thomas, in the Story of the Human Race. (Winchell Thomas.

HEALTH

SORE THROATS

Do you know the dangers of a sore throat? What you think child's throat may be, the being just a little cold in your ginning of permanent damage to his health. Rheumatic heart disease which is prevalent in temperate climates like ours, particularly in the crowded cities, often has as its beginning an infection in the throat. Serious kidney trouble too may follow soreness in the upper respiratory area. Therefore every child with a sore throat should be treated with the greatest care and be put to bed until he is better. Also an effort should be made to prevent the infection spreading to other members of the household.

There are many causes of sore throats in children. Perhaps the commonest is an infection of the tonsils and adenoids. If these become inflamed frequently they should be removed before any serious damage is done. Although diphtheria is rapidly disappearing due to the wonderful results obtained from toxoid, it still does occur, and if your child has not been given toxoid this disease must be kept in mind. Here, of course, prevention is greater than the cure and so toxoid should be given to all children. Many of the other infectious diseases such as scarlet fever and measles, make their first appearance as a sore throat. This often occurs before any rash appears, and it is most important that your child be put to bed and be carefully watched, particularly when an epidemic of any infectious disease is in the neighborhood.

Sore throats may be treated by warm gargles if the child is old enough and heat to the neck often adds to their comfort. Food should be given in fluid or semi-fluid form as this is swallowed with less pain. But the main preventive of complications is to keep the child at rest in bed. So, one of the best means of insuring your child's future health is to treat a sore throat with the greatest respect.

The Cost so Small
The BENEFITS
So Great!

HARDLY a half century ago Electric Service was almost unknown. Today it is universally the most used and useful of utility services. There is not a room in a modern home that is not made more livable, comfortable and convenient through the use of this all-doing service.

For every housewife there are many electrical appliances available and every worker can have a dozen electrical helpers at a cost which is insignificant compared to their accomplishments.

For glareless, flickerless electric lighting there is no substitute.

At the cost of a few cents radio gives the finest of world-wide entertainment for hours.

Electric refrigeration promotes health and cleanliness and will pay for itself in food preservation.

And every minute of every hour, day and night, Electricity is on the job to make your task easier.

Is there anything that brings you more at less cost?

WEEKLY LETTER EMERGENCY MEASURES FOR CONTROLLING SOIL DRIFTING

A critical soil drifting situation is quite sure to prevail on many summer-fallowed fields in Southern Alberta as soon as the snow disappears. Any fields that were drifting last fall may be expected to start again as soon as they become bare. A serious condition such as this demands careful consideration.

The question that concerns the owners of these fields is what to do about it and the answer to this depends on the types of soil and the facilities available. Single discing just as the snow is going off has proved decidedly helpful on all but sandy soils. As soon as the frost is out of the ground deep cultivation with a duck foot has given better results than most other treatments. If the cultivator will not meet the situation listing 6 or 7 inches deep with three lister shovels replacing duck feet may give the desired results. Some farmers have gone to the extreme practice of deep spring ploughing their fallows. Where this is done the ploughing must be deep enough to turn up the lumpy soil.

One thing that should be kept in mind in any operation to check drifting is that the work should start on the windward side of the field so that drifting will be checked as the work proceeds.

One of the most successful methods of stopping bad drifting is to scatter straw over the field. Frequently it is possible to prevent the field from drifting by covering focal points where drifting first starts, but even where entire fields are drifting they have been stopped with straw. This sounds like a difficult and costly thing to those who have not tried it, but it is surprising how effective a very thin covering of straw may be. A load of straw has often stopped drifting on two to five acres of land and very seldom is it necessary to put on as much as a load per acre. Some quite bad drifting has been checked with a load of straw on more acres. Straw or hay are especially useful on sandy soil and perhaps furnish the only sure way of stopping drifts on sands where cultural operations are not effective. Unfortunately there will be but little straw available in many localities this spring but it will pay to haul out the old straw bales and make piles. Although this type of cover is now difficult to scatter than straw it is quite effective.

Anyone who has a straw stack, straw bails or a manure pile can prevent even sandy soil blowing away. At least he can start on the west side of his field and by working east keep as much of his soil in place as he can get over. Clay soil that blows badly can be handled in the same way and there is an added opportunity of puddling this soil when wet either with a drag harrow or single disc. There are so many things that can be done on loam soils that there is little excuse for letting leams drift.

The problem of soil drifting is like most others on the farm. The whole situation needs to be considered and the best methods available employed. The conditions in many instances will be desperate and may have to be met with desperate remedies, but the soil is worth saving and can be saved.

U.S. PHYSICIANS CONCLAVE APPROVES BIRTH CONTROL INFORMATION.

At a recent conclave of U.S. Medicos a resolution was passed approving Dr. Eva Fay's bill advocating the dissemination of birth control information mostly to prevent the great number of deaths resulting from illegal operations. It has been also found that there was not a single statute on the law books of any of the 48 states which forbade dissemination of such information. Yet, one finds the old practitioner still very reticent on the subject. But not so with Dr. Eva Fay, who, like Margaret Sanger fought bravely for the enlightening of the masses for many years, claiming that birth control has been practiced by all peoples since creation. There are many well educated women who would not be without Dr. Eva Fay's compound a single day. For it is said to save the figure, retaining youth by simply eliminating the ruthless worry of each month that marks the face with premature age. Why not be on the safe side. ANCIENT CUSTOM LINGERS ON

EARLY CHURCH STARTED FISH HABIT THAT PERSISTS TO THIS DAY

Fishermen from the Atlantic to the Pacific are hopeful that the present effort of the Canadian Government to promote the consumption of Canadian fish will result in people eating more fish throughout the week rather than confining this delicacy to Fridays.

Though fish has been eaten as a food since prehistoric times, the early Christian Church decreed that no meat should be eaten on Fridays and fast days but that fish might be substituted. From that arose a practice that has persisted down to the present time and has led people of every denomination to associate fish with Friday often to the virtual exclusion of other days.

According to leading executives of the fishing industry, this habit is not only harmful to the industry but is robbing people of many advantages. If the people eat more fish throughout the week, they would be assured of fresher fish and they would get it at lower prices. The increased demand for the products of sea, lake and river would give an impetus to the whole industry and, while retail prices to the public would drop, the price to the public to the lessening of the fisherman would increase, present overhead caused by the public habit of eating fish mostly on Fridays.

Not only the fishing industry but the medical profession are behind the move to encourage people to eat more fish throughout the week. Many medical authorities of newspapers have gone on record as to the nutritive and healthful value of fish. With its richness in proteins, minerals and other elements they say, fish is an important article of diet, as nourishing as other foods and more easily digested.
